

EXPLORE NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

FROM RPI

The small town of Winters, California, sitting at the base of the Vaca Mountains, is one of those charming throwbacks that offer something old and something new. Its vintage Mayberry-like downtown is full of classic architecture with antique shops and restaurants. Yet mere miles away are the cultural amenities of University of California, Davis and the state capital in Sacramento, and little further, San Francisco.

At the same time, you've got Lake Berryessa only four miles away, the largest lake in Napa County, with boating, fishing and kayaking, plus swimming and water skiing. And speaking of Napa, its renowned wineries and incredible dining choices are a short drive away.

Winters is truly a crossroads for so much of what Northern California presents. It's a quaint time capsule without congestion, traffic or clutter and within shouting distance of today's top attractions. For RVers, you can enjoy it all from a home base at Canyon Creek Resort. Or, if you want to leave your RV behind, get comfortable in their one bedroom cabins, available year round. Rentals are comfortably furnished, includes all linens and a full kitchen.

As a member of Resort Parks International (RPI), which includes Thousand Trails and Encore resorts in its network, you have a remarkable array of choices where you'll be welcomed warmly at top-rated destinations like Canyon Creek.

"We have it all," said Valerie Rolih, Canyon Creek's membership manager. "We're nestled in a canyon on wonderful Putak Creek, so there is great trout fishing, swimming, hiking and beauty. Our tree-lined RV and tent sites provide an oasis location that's a natural favorite!"

"We're also famous for our activities like concerts, barbecues, themed weekends, casino nights, fishing derbies, special kids' activities and pot lucks," Rolih added. "We are really working toward an enlightened experience for our guests. In fact, we've begun a great tradition of serving Thanksgiving dinner. We served 166 guests this past year and will likely expand to two seatings next year. All of the Turkeys were cooked in our new woodburning oven by Chef Bobby, which is available for year-round enjoyment.

Canyon Creek is a great place to just relax in the beautiful surroundings. The huge level sites with hookups offer great views. The wildlife in the area is amazing. They have wonderful pools for families and adults, and new cottages next to the water. It's the finest RV camping experience in Northern California."
